

BURIAL OF MRS. ROSE

Scathing Talk by Rev. Peter A. Simpkin.

LARGE CROWD ATTENDS

Beautiful Music and Profusion of Flowers.

Striking Lesson Drawn From the Deploable Tragedy by the Officiating Minister.

Another act of the Rose murder drama was enacted yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Maud Rose, who was so foully murdered by her husband on Christmas day, was tenderly laid away in her last resting place. As for her relatives and kin, there were none present, but considerable people of the city left nothing undone. The large crowd that attended gazed eagerly around to get a glimpse of the murderer and the little child, but all in vain, for the former was locked up in his cell at the county jail, while the latter was at the Children's Home-Finding association amusing itself with childish sport.

Promptly at 3 o'clock the Rev. Mr. Simpkin took his seat in the pulpit and the large crowd, consisting almost entirely of women of all classes and ages, which had been gathering for more than an hour and now extended far out into the street, instantly became silent. The Nineteenth ward choir sang, "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning."

Rev. Mr. Simpkin read the burial service and concluded with a fervent prayer, declaring: "We have met today to pay a last tribute to a life that was untimely snatched away from the pains and pleasures of this life and sent to render its account to God."

The choir sang "We Need Thee Every Hour." This hymn, as well as the former one, was rendered with the deepest feeling and contained thoughts and sentiments especially fitting and appropriate to the occasion.

The Rev. Mr. Simpkin spoke briefly, in part, as follows: "We are called together on this solemn occasion by one of those tragedies which are becoming altogether too frequent in this city of churches, meeting-houses and temples—tragedies that are becoming too common among this people."

As the speaker continued he seemed to become thoroughly disgusted with the thought of the blackness of the awful deed and alluded to the murderer in brief as follows: "A deed so black, so bloody and so sensual casts a shadow of shame over all our Christian pretensions. It is a deed blacker than any beast of the field ever brought to pass and the boldness of this lustful sensuality which sent this woman away before her time is sickeningly disgusting."

The speaker sent an appropriate shot at the curiosity seekers present when he said: "We are here today not as judge or jury to blame or palliate a human failing, but rather because duty or a desire to pay one last tribute calls us, and those who are here for other purposes should remember that the faces with a mantle of lasting shame and with hidden faces leave."

The speaker spent the remaining time in dwelling upon the principle "That sin when it hath conceived bringeth death," and he said, "I am unwilling that you should leave this place without laying before yourselves the lesson which centers itself in this experience, and you will, if you are wise, remember that the red flower that has blossomed out of the red flower of lust or a failure to master one's self has wrought death."

He concluded as follows: "And now let us pay our last respects to this cold form, because it is that of a woman, and whatever failings she, who was robbed so suddenly of her life by one who ought to have loved her even to death, may have had, they, too, have passed away."

The beautiful oak casket was not opened after the services, although many persons had previously requested the privilege of viewing the remains. The small funeral cortege proceeded to the City cemetery, where the Rev. Mr. Simpkin conducted the last sad rites.

Through The Tribune Mrs. J. H. Stone expresses thanks to those who so generously donated means whereby the general funeral expenses were defrayed and likewise to those who contributed so many elegant and beautiful flowers and furnished the music.

HYPNOTIC MURDER.

Paris Deeply Interested in Alleged Crime, Victim Being a Woman Sixty-One Years Old.

Paris, Jan. 3.—Paris is deeply interested in the alleged hypnotic murder of a woman named Chappuis, 61 years old, whose surviving relatives include Leon Grease, an operative conductor, and a bank official. The neighbors of the Chappuis women were a family named Martin, consisting of husband and wife, who are both wealthy. It is alleged that Mrs. Martin, a commanding influence over Mrs. Chappuis, made a will in her favor, cutting off her natural heirs.

Mrs. Chappuis died and was buried. On complaint of her relatives the body was exhumed but no trace of poison was found in the stomach.

Mrs. Martin has been arrested and witnesses have testified to her alleged control over the dead woman, but it is not believed she will be prosecuted. The facts are developed showing that she physically brought about the death of Mrs. Chappuis.

WIFE OF KENTUCKY EXECUTIVE.

Mrs. J. C. Beckman.

Clarence B. Strouse, a young evangelist, whose religious awakening kept away from Gov. Beckman's inaugural ball the Governor's wife and many prominent persons of Kentucky's capital city, is today the most talked of man in the State. At Strouse's meetings Mrs. Beckman was very much in evidence, as indeed was everybody else.

When the day for the Governor's ball came around it was not thought advisable for one who had so recently given her sanction of the preachings of a strict anti-dancer to attend a ball. It was, therefore, decided, with the Governor's sanction, that Mrs. Beckman should remain away on that great gala occasion.

PACKING INDUSTRY.

Chicago Houses Slaughtered 6,580,000 Hogs During the Year Just Closed.

Chicago, Jan. 3.—Despite a decrease in receipts of hogs of 567,000, packers did a large business, the losses being partly offset by gains in cattle and sheep. There were 6,580,000 hogs slaughtered, compared with 7,027,000 in 1902 and 7,550,000 in 1901. The loss for the year was 439,000. There were 115,000 killed and shipped in carcasses to other markets, and a large percentage of the hogs were consumed by the dressed meat trade.

The dressed meat industry required the killing of 2,350,000 cattle, 250,000 calves and 3,500,000 sheep, compared with 2,000,000 cattle, 200,000 calves and 2,000,000 sheep in 1902. This necessitated the payment of $100,000,000 for live stock.

DUE TO POOR SPELLING.

Farmers Endeavoring to Sell Their Dairy Products at a Garbage Reduction Plant.

Fl. Wayne, Ind., Jan. 3.—Early last year the city garbage crematory burned down and a new one has just been completed. Under direction of the Board of Public Works the contract for painting and putting up the sign to show the public the building's purpose was let to a local painter. The work has been finished some weeks, but being out of the way of travel, it has just been discovered by those in authority with enough orthography to appreciate the fact that the word "crematory" has been spelled "crematory," and now all the farmers from that direction stop to offer dairy products for sale. The mistake will be corrected when the weather will permit.

HIGH-PRICED EAR.

Hoosier Boy Sues Woman Whose Dog Maimed Him for Two Thousand Dollars.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 3.—A New York millionaire paid $2500 cash to secure an ear to replace the one he had lost in an accident, yet Guy Jones, a 9-year-old boy of Marion, asks but $2000 for the loss of his ear. Young Jones's left ear was torn off on December 19th by a dog, which attacked him while he was playing in the street in front of his home. Mrs. Anna Julius is said to be the owner of the canine. Young Jones, by his next best friend, Lorn Stewart, filed suit in the Grant Superior court against Mrs. Julius, demanding $2000 damages for the loss of the ear.

EXPENSIVE EXPERIMENTS.

Russia Proposes to Investigate the Protection of Theaters Against Fires.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 3.—Foreign Minister Lamsdorff, Minister of Interior Plehve, M. Saenger and numerous representatives of high society have called on United States Ambassador McCormick to express condolences on the Chicago theater fire. The Russian commission appointed some time ago to investigate the protection of theaters against fire has decided to undertake a series of expensive experiments, which small animals will be placed to determine the extent of death due to fire and asphyxiation.

SITUATION IN FAR EAST.

It Is Beginning to Be Felt on Paris and London Stock Exchanges.

London, Jan. 3.—The despondency in connection with the situation in the Far East is at last beginning to be felt on the Paris Bourse with the result that Russian bonds which have only fallen about 3 per cent since September last are now affected by the depressing influence surrounding the foreign market. On the Stock exchange Chinese securities have been heavily sold on Berlin account but the Berlin Bourse is still optimistic. With such a gloomy opening of the year the volume of the week's business has been of the small.

CHICKEN BONE MENDS LEG OF BOY; GRAFTED ON SHIN

Cincinnati, Jan. 3.—James Lenahan, an eleven-year-old boy, was run down by a freight train last summer and both of his legs were badly crushed. One leg refused to knit, and as a last resort the shinbone was chiseled down and a piece of chicken bone grafted on to it. The boy left the hospital today, and while his leg is not so strong as the surgeons hoped, he is able to get about with the aid of a crutch, and there are hopes that the bone will eventually become entirely knit.

Reasons for Low Prices
"What reason?" you ask. The manufacturer of these suits and overcoats is of the hopeful kind; he started out big, manufacturing "not wisely, but too well," so when he at the end of the season found he had too big a stock on hand he was willing to part with it at a sacrifice. Our READY CASH tempted him, and TOMORROW you will see these SWELL SUITS and OVERCOATS at our store for your inspection.
